Sunnis Blast Iraq Charter

Draft constitution will strengthen insurgency, group warns

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | A day before the deadline for the new constitution, Sunni Arabs appealed Sunday to the United States to prevent Shiites and Kurds from pushing a draft through parliament without their consent, warning it would only worsen the crisis in Iraq.

Leaders of the Sunni Arab, Shiite and Kurdish factions planned final talks on Monday morning according to officials of all three groups. "I am not optimistic," said Kamal Hamdoun, a negotiator for the Sunni minority. "We either reach unanimity or not."

Iraqi officials have insisted they would meet the new deadline and present a final document to the National Assembly, dominated by Shiites and Kurds. But the chief government spokesman suggested another delay may be necessary.

A Sunni Arab backlash could complicate the U.S. strategy of using the political process to lure members of the minority away from the Sunni-dominated insurgency.

Washington hopes that a constitution, followed by general elections in December, will enable the United States and its international partners to begin removing troops next year.

The deadline for a new constitution was extended by a week last Monday after negotiators failed to agree on contentious issues including federalism, distribution of Iraq's oil wealth, power sharing questions among the provinces and the role of the Shiite clerical hierarchy. BASSEM MROUE (AP)

David Moore, of Middletown, Conn., was just one of many hopeful sort-of-flyers at the International Bognor Birdman 2005 competition, held Sunday in Bognor, England. His giant human batsuit, "Fletcher," propelled him a (very) short way over the water before he crash-descended into the sea. Contestants from nine countries competed to stay in the air long enough to cover a distance of 325 feet — a grand goal, since the farthest distance previously flown was 292 feet, in 1992. The winner takes home a $44,900 jackpot. (AP)

Burglar Alarm Store Was Next Target

Police in Manchester, England, are looking for a man who robbed a store that sold closed-circuit television equipment, the Press Association reported. The man broke into the store and took a $1,250 laptop computer that was part of a CCTV system — and was caught at almost every angle by eight separate surveillance cameras. Signs around the store noted that the shop's cameras were in operation, but the man entered anyway. (EXPRESS)

Hagel: 'We're Not Winning' in Iraq

Republican senator says war turning into Vietnam-era scenario

WASHINGTON | A leading Republican senator and prospective presidential candidate said Sunday that the war in Iraq has destabilized the Middle East and is looking more like the Vietnam conflict from a generation ago.

Nebraska Sen. Chuck Hagel, who received two Purple Hearts and other military honors for his service in Vietnam, reiterated his position that the United States needs to develop a strategy for leaving the war-torn country.

Hagel scoffed at the idea that U.S. troops could be in Iraq four years from now at levels above 100,000, a contingency for which the Pentagon is preparing.

"We should start figuring out how we get out of there," Hagel said on "This Week" on ABC. "But with this understanding, we cannot leave a vacuum that further destabilizes the Middle East. I think our involvement there has destabilized the Middle East. And the longer we stay there, I think the further destabilization will occur."

Hagel said "stay the course" is not a policy.

"By any standard, when you analyze 2 ½ years in Iraq ... we're not winning," he said.

President Bush was preparing for separate speeches this week to reaffirm his plan to help Iraq train its security forces while its leaders build a democratic government. In his weekly Saturday radio address, Bush said the fighting there protected Americans at home.

Polls show the public growing more skeptical about Bush's handling of the war.

Pro-War Group Sets Up Camp

CRAWFORD, TEXAS | A patriotic camp with a "God Bless Our President!" banner sprung up downtown Saturday, countering the anti-war demonstration started by a fallen soldier's mother two weeks ago near President Bush's ranch.

The camp is named "Fort Qualls," in memory of Marine Lance Cpl. Louis Wayne Qualls, 20, who died in Iraq last fall.

"If I have to sacrifice my whole family for the sake of our country and world, other countries that want freedom, I'll do that," said the soldier's father, Gary Qualls, who said his son, 16, now wants to enlist.

Qualls' frustration with the anti-war demonstrators erupted last week when he removed a cross bearing his son's name that was among hundreds the group had put up along the road to Bush's ranch. ANGELA K. BROWN (AP)

Gas Thief Runs Over Station Owner

FORT PAYNE, ALA. | A gas station owner was run over and killed when he tried to stop a driver from leaving without paying for $52 worth of gasoline, police said.

The driver was at large Sunday, and police said the case was being investigated as a robbery-homicide.

Witnesses told police that Husain Caddi, owner of Fort Payne Texaco, "grabbed onto the vehicle" Friday when the driver began to drive off. Caddi was dragged onto a highway, and was run over by a rear wheel of the thief's sport utility vehicle, police said. (AP)

Gotti Foe to Face 'Junior' in Court

Gotti allegedly told his gunsels.

Thirteen years after Sliwa took two bullets in a botched hit, he will finally get face-to-face with John "Junior" Gotti in a courtroom.

Sliwa, who's rarely at a loss for words, was expected to testify Monday in Gotti's federal racketeering trial.

Iran Raps Europe for Nuke Talks

Ahmadinejad criticizes trading with Tehran while bashing program

TEHRAN, IRAN | Iran's hard-line president scolded Europeans on Sunday, accusing them of being willing to sell their goods to Iranians while at the same time trying to strangle Tehran's nuclear program.

Some legislators, meanwhile, criticized Mahmoud Ahmadinejad's Cabinet picks, with one lawmaker asserting that the proposed government had autocratic leanings.

Ahmadinejad

In a speech to parliament, Ahmadinejad did not name any European country but was clearly alluding to Britain, France and Germany —

Iran's largest European trading partners. They referred Iran to the U.N. nuclear watchdog this month after Tehran said it was resuming uranium processing.

The trio had been negotiating with Iran on behalf of the European Union and the U.S. in an effort to persuade Tehran to shutter the uranium program. NASSER KARIMI (AP)

Gaza Evacuation Nears Completion

Israeli forces will turn to West Bank settlers in next part of pullout

NISSANIT, GAZA STRIP | Israeli bulldozers tore down red-roofed villas and scattered debris across green lawns Sunday, virtually erasing Jewish settlements within a few hours and delivering a graphic message that Israelis will no longer live in the Gaza Strip.

The demolitions came as the army announced that 20 of the 21 Jewish settlements in Gaza were emptied by Sunday evening.

In the West Bank, Israeli security forces skirmished with some of the thousands of ultranationalists defending two northern settlements amid fears they may use weapons when troops begin evicting residents, most likely Tuesday.

Dozens of settlers swarmed troops setting up a staging area near the Sanur settlement in the West Bank, slashing tires of military vehicles and exchanging blows with soldiers in a prelude to what could be the most difficult mission of Prime Minister Ariel Sharon's "disengagement" plan.

Sharon denounced the violent resisters during a Cabinet meeting that approved the final phase of the pullout. He also accused settler leaders of exploiting the anguish of their people to push their political agenda, delivering his harshest criticism of his onetime allies.

"The things they did were acts of hooliganism and in my opinion, borderline criminal," Sharon said of the protesters. "This doesn't just reflect on them but on those who sent them and incited them and directed them."

Troops brushed past barricades and steel gates Sunday to enter four Gaza settlements and escort teary residents to buses. Settlers bid farewell to communities they built over decades, repeating scenes that have gripped Israelis almost daily for a week. ODED RAZ (AP)

Chinese Factory Protest Turns Violent

BEIJING | Protesters demanding the closure of an eastern China battery factory they say is spewing lead into the environment clashed with police, and dozens of people were injured, witnesses and hospital officials said Sunday.

After the initial melee with police, thousands of demonstrators torched police cars and broke into government offices, witnesses reported.

Such scenes of frustration are becoming more common in rural China as villagers vent their anger against corruption, environmental degradation and the seizure of land for real estate development.

While Beijing says it is concerned and wants a peaceful resolution to these disputes, local authorities — many indifferent or bullying — usually end up dealing with the situations, which often turn violent.

Saturday's violence began after a large crowd gathered outside the Tian Neng Battery Factory in Meishan, a town in Zhejiang province, to demonstrate against lead pollution, said a villager, who refused to give his name for fear of retribution. (AP)

Chavez, Castro Flaunt Ties, Slam U.S.

HAVANA | Venezuelan President Hugo Chavez criticized the United States for recent remarks about his role in Latin America, saying in a Sunday broadcast from Cuba that it is the policies of the U.S. government that are harming the world, not his own.

Chavez spoke alongside Cuban President Fidel Castro during his weekly address from the western tip of the island, flaunting the close ties between the two leftist leaders that U.S. officials say are threatening democracy in the region.

Chavez was responding to remarks U.S. Defense Secretary

Venezuela's leader Hugo Chavez, left, with Fidel Castro in Cuba on Sunday.

Donald H. Rumsfeld made on his way home from visits to Paraguay and Peru last week. Referring to social uprisings in Bolivia that have pushed out two presidents in less than two years, Rumsfeld told reporters that Venezuela and Cuba have been influencing the Andean nation "in unhelpful ways."

Chavez gave a new vote of confidence to Castro's communist government Sunday, calling it a "revolutionary democracy" in which the Cuban people rule.

Television footage showed Chavez and Castro together in the streets of Pinar del Rio earlier in the day, wearing green military uniforms and saluting hundreds of residents waving Cuban and Venezuelan flags. VANESSA ARRINGTON (AP)

Eastern Ethiopia Holds Vote Under Heavy Security

JIJIGA, ETHIOPIA | Voting in eastern Ethiopia ended peacefully Sunday, as elite forces, pro-government militia and police patrolled streets to secure the region's delayed elections.

Voters in the mostly ethnic Somali region, some armed with assault rifles, gathered at sunrise at polling stations to elect 23 federal lawmakers and 168 regional legislators. Some voters said they hoped the election would bring a way out of poverty for the region.

General elections were held in the rest of the country on May 15. But voting in the Somali region was made difficult by heavy rains, poor communications and the presence of separatist rebels. (AP)

Bomb Hits Convoy in Afghanistan

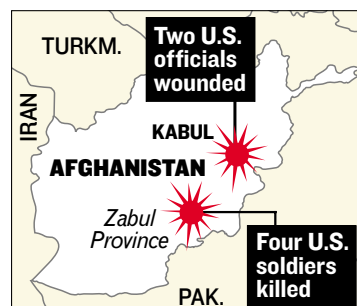

4 U.S. soldiers killed as violence persists ahead of Sept. 18 polls

KABUL, AFGHANISTAN | A massive bomb exploded under a wooden bridge as a convoy of armored Humvees was crossing it Sunday, killing four U.S. soldiers and wounding three others in the deadliest assault on American forces in Afghanistan in nearly two months.

The troops were part of a major offensive against militants who have vowed to subvert legislative elections on Sept. 18 — the next step toward democracy in the war-torn country.

Rebels also stepped up attacks elsewhere, wounding two U.S. Embassy staff in a roadside bombing in the capital and killing a senior pro-government cleric and a colleague in the country's south.

Though the U.S. military operation has left dozens of suspected rebels dead or captured, a number of U.S. troops also have been killed, including 13 this month. Officials have warned violence may worsen ahead of the polls.

The bomb tied to the bottom of the small bridge exploded as the last of three Humvees was slowly crossing it, said Bashir Ahmad Khan, the government chief in Zabol province's Daychopan district.

Maj. Gen. Jason Kamiya, the U.S.-led coalition's operational commander, said the blast would "strengthen, not weaken, the resolve" of the troops to safeguard the polls. DANIEL COONEY (AP)

HOLY JOURNEY: Pope Benedict XVI greets thousands of pilgrims attending the concluding Mass of the 20th World Youth Day near Cologne, Germany, on Sunday.

Huge Mass Marks End To New Pope's First Trip

COLOGNE, GERMANY | Pope Benedict XVI triumphantly ended his four-day trip to his native Germany on Sunday, celebrating an open-air Mass for a million people and warning Europe against growing secularism and "do-it-yourself" religion.

During his closing homily at Sunday Mass, Benedict told those gathered for the church's 20th World Youth Day festival in Cologne, Germany, that there was a "strange forgetfulness of God," while at the same time the sense of frustration and dissatisfaction has led to a "new explosion of religion."

The throngs from almost 200 countries had been invited to the festival by a different pope, the charismatic John Paul II, before his death April 2.

But they embraced his 78-year-old, more subdued successor with the same huge turnout on his first foreign trip as pope. Some 800,000 of them spent the night in the Marienfeld, outside Cologne, sleeping on the ground so they could attend Sunday's Mass.

Benedict used his trip to make it clear that he intends to continue key parts of John Paul's heritage. In particular, he held two important interfaith meetings with Muslims and Jews. He became only the second pope in history to visit a synagogue. MELISSA EDDY (AP)

Historians Press for War of 1812 Trail

BALTIMORE | Historians are teaming up with politicians to commemorate the War of 1812, with Congress considering legislation that would designate a 290-mile trail through Maryland, Virginia and Washington, D.C., which the British burned in 1814.

Historians fear that the origin of "The Star-Spangled Banner," the national anthem which was penned as a poem by Francis Scott Key, is easily forgotten or unknown.

The Star-Spangled Banner Trail would begin in Southern Maryland near St. Leonard Creek and loop up to such sites as Alexandria, Va., Washington, D.C., Bladensburg, Md., and Baltimore.

It was in Baltimore that Key witnessed British ships firing on Fort McHenry, where the American flag survived the "rockets' red glare" and "bombs bursting in air." (AP)

Metro Promotes New Ads

With sticker shock at the pumps, agency pushes bus ridership

WASHINGTON | Rising gasoline prices have prompted Metro to launch an advertising campaign promoting its buses as an affordable option for commuters tired of seeing their wallets drained at the fuel pump.

The ads feature a fuel gauge registering below empty, with the caption, "A trip to the pump is no vacation."

"We'd love to see people stuck in traffic watching their gas gauge dwindle toward 'E' while they have a bus in front of them that shows the ad," said Candace E. Smith, a Metro spokeswoman.

Gasoline prices have been inching upward. At the start of last week, a gallon of self-service regular averaged $2.56 in the Washington region. By Friday, it had risen to $2.67 according to AAA Mid-Atlantic. Some consumers have admitted cutting back on travel spending and recreation because of fuel costs.

"If you're spending more than $2.55 a gallon, it costs you $1.25 to ride the bus. Base rail fare is $1.35, so it's cheaper to take mass transit," Smith said. "Ridership traditionally declines in August from July levels due to a decline in tourism, but ridership has been up all summer."

The new campaign is focused on buses instead of Metrorail stations because those who use subways already are transit riders.

Twenty-five buses carry the ads.

A follow-up ad, which will begin running in mid-September, will feature a purse with a gasoline hose coiled around it like a snake. "It says something like, 'Feel the squeeze?'" Smith said.

"That's great marketing by Metro," said Lon Anderson, a spokesman for AAA Mid-Atlantic. The auto club has been encouraging members to carpool and use mass transit. DERRILL HOLLY (AP)

NET GAIN: Baltimore sports fans finally have something to be proud of. Led by player-coach Gary Gait's six goals, the Baltimore Bayhawks won their second Major League Lacrosse title with a 15-9 victory Sunday vs. the Long Island Lizards.

MYSTICS

Losing Streak Reaches 5

Deanna Nolan had 18 points to lead the Detroit Shock to a 66-52 victory Sunday over the Washington Mystics to stay in contention for the fourth and final Eastern Conference play-off spot. The Shock (15-16) lead the Mystics (14-17) by one game with three games left in the regular season. Alana Beard led Washington, losers of five straight, with 20 points on 7-of-13 shooting. The other starters shots a combined 3-for-27. (AP)

AUTO RACING

Strategy Fuels Mayfield Win

Jeremy Mayfield came out on top of a chaotic race Sunday, running the last 52 laps on a single tank of fuel and winning his first NASCAR Nextel Cup race of this season. Mayfield was never close to the lead earlier in the race. But one by one, the leaders were forced to pit for fuel and Mayfield inherited the top spot with six laps to go in the 200-lap event at Michigan International Speedway. (AP)

TENNIS

Federer Tops Roddick, Again

No matter what he tries, Andy Roddick can't figure out a way to beat the world's top player. Roger Federer won his 22nd straight final on Sunday, beating the exasperated American 6-3, 7-5 for the Cincinnati Masters championship and his ninth overall title this season. Federer improved to 10-1 against Roddick, who tried every tactic but still came up short. Federer has won the last six times they've met. (AP)

LEADING MAN: Before throwing a pitch Sunday, Esteban Loaiza had a 6-0 lead vs. the Mets. He got the win in the Nats' victory.

Nationals Batter the Mets

Loaiza benefits from big first inning in 7-4 win

NATIONALS | The Washington Nationals sent Kris Benson to the showers so fast, he hardly had time to work up a sweat.

Ryan Church doubled and singled in a six-run first inning, and Washington battered Benson in a 7-4 victory Sunday over the New York Mets.

Light-hitting Cristian Guzman doubled twice and drove in two runs for the Nationals, who avoided a three-game sweep and kept pace in the tight NL wild-card race.

Working on three days' rest for the first time this year, Esteban Loaiza (8-9) was handed a 6-0 lead before he threw a pitch.

"It's nice, but there's still a lot of game left," Loaiza said. "All I had on my mind was putting up zeros."

Washington got seven straight hits with two outs in the first inning, chasing Benson (9-5) from the shortest outing of his seven-year career.

"He just couldn't stop the avalanche," New York manager Willie Randolph said.

Loaiza allowed three runs and seven hits in 6 1/3 innings. He struck out eight and improved to 2-4 in his last seven starts.

Washington committed two errors in the ninth, allowing the Mets to score an unearned run before Chad Cordero struck out David Wright with two on to end it. MIKE FITZPATRICK (AP)

Mystery Remains in NFL Death

Autopsy doesn't reveal the cause of Herrion's collapse after a game

FOOTBALL | The cause of offensive lineman Thomas Herrion's death cannot be determined until toxicology tests are performed, a process that usually takes three to six weeks, a coroner said Sunday.

The 23-year-old offensive guard for the San Francisco 49ers collapsed in the locker room Saturday night, minutes after the team's exhibition game against the Broncos in mile-high Denver. He was taken to the hospital and pronounced dead shortly after.

"We didn't see anything happen," 49ers defensive lineman Marques Douglas said. "I sat by my locker and prayed for him."

The death once again spotlights how dehydration and obesity affect athletes. Herrion was 6-foot-3, 310 pounds — average for an NFL lineman, but obese by standards accepted in the medical community. "Our thoughts are with the Herrion family and the 49ers," NFL spokesman Greg Aiello said Sunday. (AP)

Slumping Baltimore back in losing habit after good start to trip

ORIOLES | Travis Hafner drove in four runs to help C.C. Sabathia win his fourth straight start, and the Cleveland Indians completed a three-game sweep of the Baltimore Orioles with a 5-1 victory Sunday.

games to move a season-high 12 games over .500.

The skidding Orioles fell to 13-23 since the All-Star break and lost for the 26th time in 36 road games — despite opening a six-game trip with a three-game sweep in Oakland.

"I'm disappointed," said Sam Perlozzo, who is 9-7 as interim manager. "I didn't expect to come in here and get swept."

Sabathia (10-9) improved to 4-0 in August after losing his last five starts in July. (AP) —Brian Billick, the none-too-happy Ravens coach discussing his team's 20-14 loss to the Eagles.

Summer Camp Is Over for Redskins

Players get a weekend at home before change to the season's routine

REDSKINS | The Washington Redskins are already done with training camp after three weeks and only 15 full practices, the team's shortest and least physically demanding camp in decades — if not ever.

Coach Joe Gibbs had players report on the latest possible date, July 31, and put his charges through just three of the dreaded two-a-day practices. By comparison, coach Norv Turner's camp 10 years ago had three two-a-days in the first week alone.

"It's not like it was when I came into the league," said 42-year-old Ray Brown, who just completed his 20th training camp. "Nobody could imagine any camp lasting three weeks."

Gibbs had two reasons for starting camp late. First, he offered it as a reward to his players if they worked hard during spring conditioning. Secondly, he wanted to cut down on injuries.

Gibbs planned to set the players free on Wednesday, but decided to let them go home early and enjoy the weekend before returning to practice Monday on a schedule similar to a regular season routine.

"It doesn't mean we're going to end camp — it's the end of bed-check," Gibbs said. JOSEPH WHITE (AP)

Woods Tops World For Victory at the NEC Invitational

GOLF | Tiger Woods overcame some shaky putting Sunday by making the one that mattered.

Woods rolled in an 18-foot birdie putt that broke sharply into the right side of the cup, then escaped with par from the trees on the 18th hole for a 1-under 71 and a one-shot victory over Chris DiMarco in the NEC Invitational for his fifth win of the year. Woods made it seven consecutive years with at least one World Golf Championship title since the series began in 1999, and he has won nine of the 18 events he has played.

Woods missed five putts inside 8 feet and trailed Kenny Perry by two shots when they made the turn. Even the birdie putt that finally gave him the lead required an approach from 189 yards over the water. (AP)

ENCHANTED FOREST: Damon plays one half of a traveling con game until conscripted to solve a rash of disappearances.

Into the Woods

It's Matt Damon vs. geese on the set of 'The Brothers Grimm'

DARK TALES | Jacob and Wilhelm Grimm were 19th-century German scholars who spent years compiling folk tales from around their country. Their published collection includes some of the most beloved fairy tales including Cinderella, Hansel and Gretel and Little Red Riding Hood. The Grimms also began what became a 16-volume historical German dictionary, Deutsches Wörterbuch.

"They were really influential guys — they unearthed all of these stories and collected them and wrote them down and suddenly everyone got very proud of their heritage; and then there's our movie," said Matt Damon, who portrays "Will" in Terry Gilliam's "The Brothers Grimm." The fantasy adventure is loosely based on the brothers' exploits.

"They're probably spinning in their graves," he added.

Damon co-stars with Heath Ledger as a pair of con men traveling the German countryside duping yokels into paying them to rid their towns of monsters and demons. When the French occupiers figure out the brothers' scheme, the duo is forced into a real enchanted forest to solve the mysterious disappearance of several local maidens or face execution. There they must match wits against a youth-obsessed witch (Monica Bellucci).

Speaking with an English accent (as he does in the movie) was a bit tricky for the native Bostonian, who admitted, "It was in and out for me." But "Grimm" also afforded the actor an opportunity to play against type. Damon's Will is the pragmatic ladies' man, while 26-year-old Ledger plays the bookish, socially awkward dreamer.

"I just thought it would be great for Matt to be Ben Affleck for a role," joked Gilliam.

Co-star Jonathan Pryce, who starred in Gilliam's "Brazil," and appears as the dastardly General Delatombe in "Grimm," warned Damon about Gilliam's quest for perfection. He recalled how on his first day of work on "Brazil," he felt confident after his first take. That is, until Gilliam approached him and asked him to turn around. "You are competing with this set and you are losing," Gilliam reportedly told Pryce. Pryce responded, "I get it. I gotta be a little bigger."

Damon understands, saying he felt more like a prop than a star.

"You're like one of 11 elements in a shot," claims the actor. "You could do a great take, but if the geese aren't right in the background or if the smoke isn't coming out of the chimney just right, then you've got to do it again." ANGELA DAWSON (ENTERTAINMENT NEWS WIRE)

Beauty That's Only Film-Deep

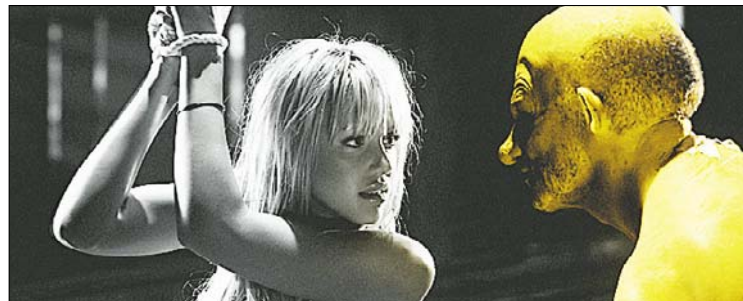

A DVD of 'Sin City' proves that looks aren't everything

DVDS | "Sin City," one of the year's most visually dazzling films, arrives in a DVD that's surprisingly skimpy considering co-director Robert Rodriguez's boyishly enthusiastic manner of chatting up the process of moviemaking — which in this case involved transplanting the starkly stylized world of Frank Miller's graphic novels to the screen.

The only extra on this DVD from Dimension is an eight-minute featurette with cast and crew interviews about adapting Miller's noirish tales into this anthology of loosely linked stories about tough guys on missions that center on some shady ladies.

Co-director Miller notes that he was a hard sell on a movie adaptation, saying there was "no need to let anybody have my baby, and I held to that ... until this Rodriguez

Stars' Power to Heal

A singer and actress changed by a trip to a desperate continent

AWARENESS | Soul singer India.Arie is hoping viewers will be moved to action after watching VH1's upcoming documentary "Tracking the Monster," in which she and actress Ashley Judd visit separate African countries grappling with the plight of AIDS.

"It's what the power of this piece is, because I intellectually heard the numbers and knew that Africa was being devastated, but when you see it, you only need to see a portion of it and then multiply it in your mind," India.Arie said after a private screening. "Seeing it just made it much more real."

RAISE YOUR VOICE: India.Arie, above, and Ashley Judd each went to AIDS-stricken Africa to help stimulate international recognition of the widespread problem.

The singer visited poverty-stricken sections of Kenya and met with people infected with AIDS or the HIV virus and comforted children orphaned by the disease.

Judd visited the island of Madagascar and talked with women in prostitution about safe sex.

In one heartbreaking scene, India.Arie asks a 14-year-old girl if she could have anything in the world, what would she want. The girl, an orphan, tells the singer she wants to come home with her, and bursts into tears.

The singer said she's frustrated the continent hasn't received more help in its fight against AIDS: "It's not fair to me. It's not fair that people ignore AIDS in Africa because it's Africa. It's not fair. If it was Eastern Europe or the lighter the ethnic group, I think the more help they would get."

The experience inspired India.Arie to write songs about her experience. Some of them will be featured on her new, dual-album project; one album will be released in the fall and another a few months later.

India.Arie thinks the new material may lead people to criticize her for being too idealistic, but she doesn't care.

"I've given up the whole fear of being called earnest because I am earnest and my music is earnest at times, and that's OK," she said.

"The songs that I've written about Africa, and AIDS and HIV and about the power of humanitarian love, those songs, I'm gonna sing them because I know that it's real."

AND HE'S UP: NBC knocked out its fledgling sports-reality show "The Contender" after one season, but it will live to fight another day on ESPN. The cable net will broadcast a rematch of the show's climactic fight, with some of the losers on the undercard.

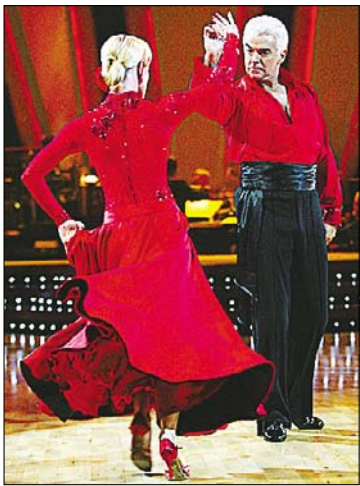

Going Toe-to-Toe

O'Hurley and Monaco take drastic steps to resolve 'Dancing' flap

THROWDOWN | It's time for a good old-fashioned dance-off.

Kelly Monaco and John O'Hurley will return for a rematch of the "Dancing With the Stars" finale. The encore performance, billed as a "dance-off," will air Sept. 20 on ABC, with a results show set for Sept. 22.

Monaco, a 29-year-old actress from ABC's "General Hospital," and her professional dancing partner bested O'Hurley on the hit ballroom dancing competition show on July 6. O'Hurley is famous for playing catalogue king J. Peterman on NBC's "Seinfeld."

STEPPING OUT: O'Hurley shows how he kept the TV audience entranced.

The victory was viewed by many as an upset over the popular O'Hurley and prompted skepticism over whether Monaco had been favored because she worked on another ABC program. The network has denied such claims.

For the rematch, each pairing will perform Latin, ballroom and freestyle dances. Unlike the original 6-week series, though, they will be judged by only viewer votes, rather than a combination of votes and judge scoring.

“Dancing with the Stars” will return for a second season, but ABC has yet to announce a date for its premiere. (AP)

ON TV TONIGHT

THE LAST MINUTES

INSIDE 9/11 (9 p.m., National Geographic) concludes with a minute-by-minute chronology of the terrorists' movements as they hijacked jetliners and flew them into their targets.

PRECIOUS REMNANTS

HISTORY DETECTIVES (10 p.m., PBS) sifts through evidence: a watch said to have belonged to Doc Holliday; a photograph that may be of a woman who disguised herself to fight for the Confederate Army; and watercolors possibly from an American Japanese internment camp.

ALL JOAN, ALL DAY LONG

Turner Classic Movies spends the day with the movies of Joan Crawford: MILDRED PIERCE (8 p.m.) , THE GORGEOUS HUSSY (11:30 a.m.) , THE LAST OF MRS.

In "Mildred Pierce," Crawford played the ultimate self-sacrificing mom.

CHEYNEY (1:15 p.m.) and THE STORY OF ESTHER COSTELLO (10 p.m.).

The number of minutes a day, on average, that top staff surf the Web at work, according to Accountemps, a temp-staffing firm. In the survey of 150 senior executives, 23 percent said their company monitors Internet activity "very closely."

Graphic Designer

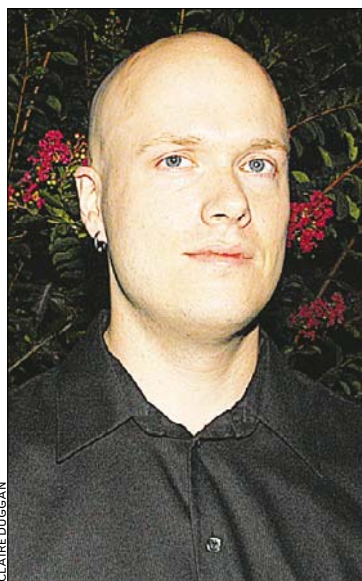

JOHN FOSTER, 32

JOB: Graphics specialist, Army Research Laboratory in Adelphi, Md.

SALARY: ARL pays designers at his level from $45,000 to $70,000

EDUCATION: Bachelor's in art from University of Maryland, Baltimore County

WHAT HE DOES: When ARL engineers and scientists need any sort of visual representation of their work, they look to Foster. "We'll be doing video one day, animation another, then an illustration, and then maybe someone comes to us and says they want a big display that uses a lot of 3-D imagery," said Foster, who describes his job as "an artist combined with a computer geek." About 60 to 70 percent of his jobs are rush. In one instance, ARL needed to get a new battlefield mortar-tracking system to soldiers right away, and Foster's team had to put together an instruction manual for a system that had never been used before. "Within 48 hours, it was shipped out. ... Everyone was relying on what we did," he said. "It ended up working like a charm."

WOULD YOU WANT HIS JOB? Dealing with science can be frustrating. "Most of the time the subject will be, like, nanotechnology ... very abstract and not easy for the layman to understand," said Foster. And when it comes to the scientists, "we're speaking two different languages," said Foster. "Most things are far too technical to explain even to us. They kind of need to hold our hands a bit."

HOW YOU CAN GET HIS JOB: "You can be a good artist, but if you don't know the software everyone's using, you're nothing," he said. Many schools offer courses, but it's essential to couple those with experience outside the classroom. Try a graphic design temp agency, which will match you with jobs as your skills develop.

If I tell my boss I've been seeing a doctor but I've really been leaving early to get manicures, haircuts or to go home, can he check my insurance records to see if I'm lying?

You have the duty to work for your pay. I would guess it would be within the legal confines for your boss to do some investigating. But why risk it? Take a vacation day.

The lost Hawaiian sport of lava sledding makes a comeback

As a boy growing up in a poor family on Hawaii's Big Island, Tom "Pohaku" Stone barreled down grassy slopes aboard ti leaves and banana stumps.

What began as childhood fun on a natural roller coaster has evolved into an academic and cultural journey aimed at reviving the 2,000-year-old Hawaiian tradition of he'e holua, or Hawaiian lava sledding.

He has the scars to show for it. Wearing just a tank top and shorts and reaching speeds of up to 70 mph on a sled standing only 4 inches above the ground, Stone once ran into a steel post sticking up from the grass during a demonstration on a slope on Maui, tearing an 18-inch gash in his left thigh.

In another crash, Stone broke his neck. It hasn't stopped him.

"You can't even imagine what it's like to be headfirst, 4 inches off the ground, doing 30, 40, 50 miles an hour on rock," Stone said. "It looks like you are riding just fluid lava. It's death-defying."

SLIPPERY SLOPE: Tom "Pohaku" Stone, left, and his wife Anne work together on a sled for sliding down lava slopes. He sells his creations for $3,000 and up.

Rock Sliders

Traditionally, he'e holua served both as a sport and as a vehicle for Hawaiians to honor their gods, especially Pele, the goddess of fire. After reaching the top of a slope, Hawaiians would stand up, lie down or kneel atop hardwood sleds and speed down the man-made courses of hardened lava rocks sprinkled with grass.

But Christian missionaries saw the sport as "a frivolous waste of time," Stone said, and its practice ended in 1825.

Stone first heard about the practice through stories told by his grandfather. His interest in reviving the sport came in 1993, when he wrote a term paper on the tradition for a college class. A year later, he built his first sled.

A retired lifeguard and champion surfer, Stone has discovered 57 rock slides of various lengths across the state, and spent three days with a crew of seven to make a 200-foot repair on a 700-foot course. The only remaining course on Oahu is at Kaena Point, he said, and only two courses are in decent condition, both on the Big Island. Stone said there are only about a couple of dozen regular riders.

Clifford "Pake" Ah Mow got hooked on the sport three years ago as he sped down a trail on the Big Island. "It's great, unbelievable," said Ah Mow, a lifeguard who has sustained "little bumps and bruises" while sledding. "You get the chills."

By the end of this year, Stone wants to complete a mile-long rock slide on the Big Island and hold the first he'e holua event there in more than 100 years.

He said the biggest challenge is to find a sponsor willing to back the dangerous event, whose judging criteria will include "style, length of ride and survival ability."

"There's people across the world that want to ride," he said. "Once you do it, you never look back. You want to do it all the time."

Atlanta lures gay African-Americans in increasing numbers

Once or twice a week, the women's drum circle gathers to practice. Drum Sista's members pound and caress the skins, bonding through the rhythm in an atmosphere of like-minded women — activists and artists, all African-American, all lesbian.

It is no accident that they found one another in Atlanta.

The city and its suburbs have become a mecca for black gays and lesbians. The region now is home to the biggest concentration of black same-sex couples in the South, with nearly as many as the Chicago area, which has more than four times as many blacks.

In The Life Atlanta's Darlene Hudson, right, and Landra Conway plan a gay pride event.

Though Atlanta's blacks generally reflect African-Americans nationwide — many are religious, socially conservative and critical of homosexuality — lesbians and gays in town are courted by elected officials and they have access to some of the nation's best HIV-fighting resources geared toward African-Americans. Each year, the city hosts what organizers say is the biggest black, gay festival in the world.

"This is our home," said Mary Anne Adams, a social worker and chair of Zami, an advocacy group for black lesbians that organized the drum circle. "This is the place that needs us the most and that we need the most."

Two years ago, about 15,000 attended Atlanta's annual black gay festival over Labor Day weekend. A year later, that number had doubled, said Michael Slaughter, co-chair of In the Life Atlanta, which organizes the event.

"In Atlanta, you can stand out on Peachtree in front of a gay bar and very rarely is someone going to say something to you," he said. "It's just not the same" in other cities.

Though advocates say more help is needed, a significant portion of the city's AIDS resources are focused on the black community. For example, the Ponce Center serves 7,000 people, most of whom are uninsured, black and battling AIDS, the top killer of young black men.

David Malebranche, a physician who works at the Ponce Center, said many black lesbians and gays settle in Atlanta because they "feel ostracized from the white gay community because of racism. People will migrate to a city where there is a lot of black people in general, and then within that you find your niche."

Indeed, many agree that Atlanta's gay community remains largely racially separated. "This is still the South. We have that kind of mind-set," said LaMont "Montee" Evans, an advocate and health outreach worker.

Outside Atlanta, he said, Georgia's generally conservative politics make gay advocacy tough. Even so, two small Georgia cities — Macon and Albany — have some of the nation's largest proportions of black gay couples relative to all gay couples, according to the National Gay and Lesbian Task Force.

Advocates say the community must now begin to flex its political muscle more effectively. "In Atlanta, we have a large gay population that votes," said Adams of Zami. "There are bread and butter issues that the black gay community cares about. We're doing better at leveraging that." ERIN TEXEIRA (AP)

These jeans hit the natural waistline, but have other details to make them look hip—lace-up details and age-appropriate embroidery of butterflies or flowers, for example. Pair them with a long-sleeve tee under a short-sleeve tee with a bold graphic or jazzy trim. ($13, T.J. MAXX)

This stretch corduroy, A-line skirt looks like a mini, but the hemline is extended with a band of cotton flannel. (in three colors, $22, L.L. BEAN KIDS, llbean.com)

A velvet pinafore with strips of ruffles down the front and two front pockets hits on the velvet trend in a very girlish way without being too cute. (not yet available, MINI BODEN, bodenusa.com)

Target's backpacks and lunch bags are sleek and modern, touting bold graphics and colors instead of licensed characters. Some even have iPod and cell phone pockets. (prices vary, TARGET)

LANDS' END climber pants have reinforced knees and an elastic waist with a built-in belt, so boys can run, jump and play. ($26.50, landsend.com)

Extreme Cleavage

Need a pick-me-up? Maidenform's new FEELING SEXY EXTREME PUSH-UP BRA ($29.50 at department stores) won't help you do aerial stunts, but it will give you a lift to the grocery store (and anywhere else you wear it). Designed to be worn with low-cut tops and dresses, it gave this tester's bosoms a believable shape that didn't scream "Dolly Parton wannabe!" Though the padding made it a little warm for D.C.'s heat wave, and the ends of the underwires could have used more shielding, the bra is comfortable, with a good fit and a nice feel. It may not be a bicep-builder, but it's a painless way to get your daily dose of push-ups. LYNN THORNE

DAWN DIRECT FOAM

($4) makes as many promises as a virgin schoolboy on prom night. It will absorb grease with "micro-emulsion technology," so that it's not transferred from dish to dish. It'll keep your sponge clean — no rinsing needed. You only need one pump per sink-load. And it's foamy! We tested it on a pile of intentionally over-greased dishes (a stick of margarine was involved). Astonishingly, it performed as advertised, sucking the grease off the dishes and coming back for more. It didn't do anything special to baked-on food; those plates had to soak just as they would in mortal soap. Nonetheless, Direct Foam's a keeper. HOLLY J. MORRIS (EXPRESS)

Movies

Grizzly Life

JEWEL PALOVAK, executive producer of "Grizzly Man," about amateur grizzly bear expert Timothy Treadwell, was online Friday | washingtonpost.com/liveonline

My thought, for what it's worth, is that Treadwell got too comfortable and "personified" the bears. By naming the bears, he tried to humanize them. But in the end, they were not his friends but the wild animals they were born to be. All of the bears that you see in "Grizzly Man" are the wild animals they were meant to be. But I believe that Timothy ran into a bad one. He did not die singing to bears, approaching mothers with cubs or filming a fight sequence, for instance. He died in the rain with his shoes and his glasses off. I don't believe that he could have entered the world of bears the way he did without giving them names and feeling a closer kinship.

Most wild animals are unpredictable despite years of their behavioral research. Do you think Timothy and his friend were infringing too much into the grizzlies' territory? I think that you are right that animals need a lot of space. But I know that over 13 years Timothy built up a special relationship with three generations of grizzly bears. I think that when you spend that amount of time in the wild, especially with Earth's largest carnivores, that you are taking a chance, but that the benefits of education and protection outweighed the risk for Timothy.

Did Treadwell ever actually make a living from his obsession with the grizzlies? How did he finance 13 summers in Katmai [National Park]? We financed his summers, called expeditions, in various ways: through Grizzly People, our non-profit organization, through our book, "Among Grizzlies," through the "Grizzly Diaries" on the Discovery channel, and most recently Timothy was a consultant on the Disney film "Brother Bear."

Do you think you will ever listen to the tape? [The tape is one that was found in Treadwell's video camera which recorded audio of his actual mauling and death.]

No, I will never listen to the tape. Timothy was my great friend for over 20 years and I want to remember all the fun, positive aspects of him.

Do you think Timothy crossed a line with the Grizzly bears? I think that people do dangerous things for a living all the time and I think to break through barriers and do something different requires pushing the envelope. When you are immersed in wild nature you cross boundaries every day.

A Slog Through the Blog

I WAS KIND OF PSYCHED when you started printing blog quotes from around D.C. (Blog Log). I think it's a great idea. However, your choice of quotes has been getting worse. You used to have interesting, quirky and funny quotes. Surely there is something more interesting going on in the blogosphere than some inane question about citrus smells on the Metro, and two tired and trite quotes about issues we get our fill of on the front pages — the Gaza pullout and gas prices (Aug. 19). The quote about Lindsey Lohan was good. Please do a better job in the future.

Horoscope

By Stella Wilder

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Reassess your working relationship with a close friend. Trying to combine business with pleasure may be threatening to progress.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don’t lose sight of what’s really important. There will be numerous distractions and peripheral concerns, but a number one focus will prevail.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Reward yourself for your recent hard work today, but realize that there is more hard work in store. You have a long road to travel.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) A special friend might need you more than usual. Make it easier for him or her: Extend that helping hand before assistance is solicited.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Don’t second-guess a loved one today. Surprises are always more fun for you when they remain surprises.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) An unexpected scenario may require more of an open-minded attitude than you are used to — but in the end, you’ll receive your rewards as well.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) It’s essential that you play the role of good guy, despite your resistance to certain developments taking place.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Remember that while you may be at the peak of your powers, it is important that you don’t lord them over those around you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your own schedule may conflict with that of a close friend who has big plans for the both of you. Someone is going to have to make a compromise.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Today’s endeavors may require some quick thinking and unusual physical machinations, but you have what it takes to come through.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You may be tempted to ask for advice, but the fact is that you are an authority when it comes to required elements.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You’re going to have to lay down the law for someone who isn’t willing, just yet, to do what is expected. Don’t take no for an answer.

SERIOUS DARK CIRCLES?

HYLEXIN® IS NOT AN ORDINARY EYE CREAM,
IT'S A DARK CIRCLE BREAKTHROUGH!

"It's the first product specifically developed for serious dark circles...
not the kind that pop up in the morning and are gone by breakfast, but the kind of serious dark circles that stay around forever...
making you look old, tired and exhausted."

GOODBYE DARK CIRCLES

In a clinical trial, more than 72% of women and men who used Hylexin saw an obvious reduction in the color and severity of their dark circles.
In a matter of days, serious dark circles begin to fade...
your eyes look clear, bright and alive!
